

A 21st Century Education at America's Sixth Oldest College

BE a LITTLE REVOLUTIONARY

MORAVIAN
COLLEGE

STUDENT LIFE

Moravian College has a million ways for students to unleash their inner go-getters outside of class, from 20 NCAA Division III teams, as well as intramural and club sports, to 80-plus clubs and organizations, including Amnesty International, International Club, IDEA: Instilling Diversity Equality and Awareness, Saudi Student Club, Middle Eastern Club and the Muslim Students Association. Greyhounds participate in service, Greek life, performing arts and campus communications.

Students can serve on United Student Government, host a radio show on WRMC, join the Greyhound Marching Band and see a show in New York City with the Moravian Activities Council. They can even start their own clubs.

Greyhounds get to be front and center for campus traditions (like Moravian College's distinguished speaker series) and enjoy amenities such as the always-buzzing student union and the new fitness center. Moravian's quality music programs and top exhibits in its Payne Gallery showcase world-class talent and creativity.

For centuries, Moravian College has been unleashing the kind of out-of-the-box dreamers, doers, and go-getters—revolutionary-thinking Greyhounds—the world needs. And that's just the beginning.

STILL a LITTLE REVOLUTIONARY

As America's sixth oldest college, Moravian College (MC) has been a little revolutionary from the start. Believing in an education for all since its inception, the College has been pushing boundaries in small ways that have big (lasting) impacts since 1742. Some 275 years later, Moravian College gives 1,850 undergraduates eye-opening, heart-racing ways to discover their own little revolutionary spirits.

MC's Office of Global Inclusion is entirely dedicated to the current international student population, with staff members always willing to help and always planning exciting events specifically designed for international students. It's part of the College's Center for Intercultural Advancement and Global Inclusion, which partners with faculty and staff to help international students manage their transition to the College and the local community as they pursue academic success.

Being a little revolutionary has taken Moravian College (and its students) a long way. Ninety-five percent of the College's graduates finish in four years. Even better? Newly minted alumni land jobs at companies like IBM or head to grad school at such institutions as Johns Hopkins Hospital, Georgetown, and University of Pennsylvania. So it's not surprising that Bloomberg Businessweek has ranked Moravian College among the top 25 percent of U.S. schools for high return on investment, and that Educate to Career, Inc. has ranked Moravian College 35th out of 1,182 colleges and universities nationwide for "graduate outcomes" in its annual college ranking index.

MC's hometown—Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, in the Lehigh Valley—is the perfect college town. Students can connect with Lehigh University undergrads and grads and explore the town's student-friendly restaurants, quirky shops, and growing arts scene. Bethlehem has been recognized as one of America's top 10 cities to live in, and the Lehigh Valley is the fastest growing and third most populous region in the state. It is also conveniently located about an hour and half outside New York City and within driving distance of Washington, D.C.

Moravian College encourages students to dream a little bolder, think a little different, and do something a little out there. That's why the College annually awards international students generous scholarships to help with the cost of tuition, and why it gives every freshman a MacBook Pro® and iPad® to help them get ready for the tech-savvy, ever-connected world. And it's why the College is always growing (with two new majors and a state-of-the-art medical and learning center for a new athletic training program).

Take a Drive (SHORT)

“I love the warm and welcoming community here at Moravian College. All of the professors have a personal interest in helping the students develop.”

— Maike Krischer '19, a business major from Germany

ACADEMICS

Moravian College believes in the liberating power of the liberal arts. That means students have the freedom to own their education. Choose from more than 55 academic programs. Get hands-on, in-the-field experience, such as interning with NASA. Work one-on-one with professors on Student Opportunities for Academic Research (SOAR) projects. International Students also have an opportunity to participate in study abroad programs in nearly 20 countries, including Argentina, Germany, Thailand, and Japan. Studying abroad while studying in the United States is a great way to travel while earning a degree! In addition, students can participate in programs like Add-Venture, which allows freshmen with a clear focus to accelerate past first-year requirements to explore multiple interests.

“I am indescribably grateful for this institution. Moravian College offers a great education. The classes are small, so there is a lot of opportunity to talk with your professors and get help if you need it. Both the faculty and staff are very supportive and very encouraging.”

— Hamdy Agha '17, a business management major from Yemen
