Dr. Edwin Wallace Provides Personal Perspective on Health Improvements in the Developing World

November's Monday Roundtable is a slide and lecture presentation on "The Quiet Revolution to Improve Health in the Developing World: A Personal Perspective" by Dr. Edwin Wallace. The program, sponsored by the Moravian College Alumni Association, is scheduled for November 9 at 7:00 p.m. in the Snyder Room.

Dr. Wallace, who served as a medical missionary with his wife, Emily, in Nicaragua for the Moravian Church for nine years, and spent the following years in establishing and serving numerous international health organizations, will share his personal perspective about his experiences

What is the Global Engagement Group? What Does it Do?

The Global Engagement Group, which is sponsoring "Two Weeks on China" programming November 1-15, is a new entity on campus since April, an offspring of the strategic planning process. The group consists of faculty, administrators, support staff, and students who are actively committed to promoting global understanding, global education, and global involvement to the entire campus. It is also working as a resource for the Commission on the Future Task Force of the same name to help review, refine, and implement the global commitment strategic goal.

Restrained by time and resources, the group plans to address in limited ways the areas of curriculum, faculty development, increased student study and travel abroad, and campus life as a whole. Here's what's in the works.

The group is currently undertaking a survey of all courses offered by the College to determine what

Faculty Development and Research Committee Funds Twelve Proposals

The Faculty Development Research Committee recently funded or partially funded 12 proposals. G. Clarke Chapman, May Akabogu-Collins, Carmen Ferrero, Hwa Yol Jung, Clif Kussmaul, Dan Libby, Lucy McCammon, David J. McGee, Robert H. Mayer, Peter von Allmen, Connie S. Unger, and James Yerkes received this fall's awards for their proposals.

"We received over $10,000 in requests for funding for the October due date and had to award just under $4000," said Sandy Fluck, chair of FDRC. She added, "The competition was keen and the committee spent a good deal of time looking at each individual proposal. We have an active faculty and would like to support as much faculty development as possible. It is very important that as faculty members submit proposals they do so with extreme care. The committee needs to see a complete budget, evidence of departmental support and of course rationale for how this will support the individual faculty member's development."

This fall's grants:

Clarke Chapman of the Religion Department attended the conference "Dietrich Bonhoeffer: Christian Community, Discipleship and Ethics" in California, August 10-17. At this conference he refined his article, and developed plans for a new course at Moravian College.

May Akabogu-Collins of the Economics and Business Department will travel to New York in January to attend the Allied Social Sciences Association Convention.

Carmen Ferrero of the Foreign Language Department presented her paper "Los mundos alternativos de la adolescencia en Nada de Carmen Laforet" on October 1-3, at Drew University and will present her paper "La ruptura del realismo dramático en Bodas de sangre de Carlos Saura" on November 6-7 at Villanova University.

Hwa Yol Jung of the Political Science Department traveled to Seoul, Korea, this October to present a paper, "Enlightenment and the Question of the Other: A Postmodern Audition."

Clif Kussmaul of the Computer Science Department attended the IEEE International Conference on Systems, Man, and Cybernetics in San Diego, California this October to present his paper, "Spatial Frequency Representations of Surfaces."

Dan Libby of the Chemistry Department spoke at the 216th National Meeting of the American Chemical Society in Boston over the summer. At this convention he presented a lecture, "A Small College Science Instrumentation Network."

Lucy McCammon of the Sociology Department will present her paper, "Deviance and the Social Bond: Measurement Issues Among Women," at the American Society for Criminology Annual Conference in Washington, D.C., November 11-14.

David McGee of the Physics Department attended the Optical Society of America annual meeting in Baltimore this October to present his paper, "Investigation of chromophore solubility and concentration effects in doped photorefractive polymers."

Robert Mayer of the Education Department attended the Annual Meeting of the Pennsylvania Council for Social Studies in Philadelphia this October to present "Using the Story of Anne to Teach Historical Thinking."

Peter von Allmen of the Economics and Business Department attended the October 1998 Atlantic Economics Society Conference to present his paper, "Home Production: Evidence from Great Britain."

Connie Unger of the Education Department will attend the Thirty-first Annual Keystone State Reading Conference on October 25-28, in Champion, Pennsylvania. At this conference she shared her ideas and research of silent sustained reading, the teaching of spelling, and cooperative base groups.

James Yerkes of the Religion Department will attend the Celebration of the Publication of the 200th Volume of the Dictionary of Literary Biography at the University of South Carolina on November 13-14. He will also attend a supper discussion with the writer John Updike. Jim will be presenting a course this spring for the first time entitled Religion in John Updike's Rabbit Novels.

Proposals for the Summer Research Stipend and Summer Development Seminar are due to Sandy by November 1 and November 15. The due date for general proposals is December 1. Guidelines for both are on the Y: drive in the public folder of FDRC.

Friday Get-Together to Celebrate Publication of Dana Dunn's New Book

The Psychology Department would like to invite faculty and administrative staff to attend the next Friday Get-Together on November 6.

The Get-Together is in honor of Dana Dunn's new book The Practical Researcher: A Student Guide to Conducting Psychological Research. Please mark your calendars and come help celebrate on Friday from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m. at the Dog House.

Annual Fund Report on Faculty and Staff Giving

A preview of the Annual Fund results reveals an early and hearty response from faculty and staff members.

The goal for the faculty and staff segment of this year's Annual Fund is $45,000. To date gifts and pledges total $23,084. The estimate is that the more than eighty payroll plan participants will give $11,200 over the next eight months. That means the campaign has secured $34,284 or 76% of its goal. Never before has the "family" shown such early enthusiasm in their Annual Fund campaign.

Linda Robertson, director of development, encourages everyone to consider making a pledge now.

Payments on pledges are accepted right up to the June 30th close of the fiscal year. "The student phonathon program callers use the facts and statistics about significant faculty and staff giving when they talk with alumni and friends," said Robertson. She added, "Moravian is known far and wide for its exceptional faculty and staff. Not only does each Moravian student benefit from their tremendous talents and skills but also from their philanthropic support."

Anyone needing a pledge card or payroll deduction form or wishing to make a credit card gift to the Annual Fund can call the Development Office at 861-1336.

Lady Greyhounds Win Third Straight MAC Tennis Team Championship

The Lady Greyhounds made history this season by winning their third straight Middle Atlantic Conference team championship and posting an undefeated record of 16-0.

Lynne Grzywacz

Senior Lynne Grzywacz won her second consecutive MAC singles title while junior Marnie Heller and freshman Corrine Kleinsmith won the doubles title.

Marnie Heller

Grzywacz, playing first singles, ends her career 69-6 after straight regular season undefeated in singles action and finishes her career 62-2. Her only losses came in the MAC Individual Championships.

Heller was 9-6 at number three singles and 18-1 in doubles action with Kleinsmith. The tandem played together in high school which contributed to their MAC doubles title. Kleinsmith was 14-1 at fourth singles.

In her debut season, freshman Katie Copf was 11-2 in singles action. Classmate Eleanor Flower finished 3-1-1 in singles play.

The third doubles team of senior Kate Rose and sophomore Au-turn Zander, which went 1-1 in the MAC Tournament, had an 11-5 mark. Zander also went 3-2 in singles action. Senior Liz Chamberlain contributed with a 4-3 record. Junior Lyn Ramsey posted a 1-1 singles mark while teaming up with senior Julie Fanella to finish 1-1 in doubles action. Ramsey also played in the MAC singles tournament.

Other members of the team included freshmen Julie Simms and Amanda Heywood.

percent of the courses contain international content, whether that content is historical or current in nature, and what types of non-lecture or technological means are used to incorporate international material.

Faculty Development

The group has surveyed faculty to ascertain the amount and depth of their international experiences. An increase in faculty attendance at international conferences and collaborations with colleagues abroad are long-term goals of the group.

Study Abroad

A request has been made to the Planning and Budget Committee to make the study abroad advisor a part-time, paid position beginning in the 1999-2000 academic year. The group has written a job description to better define the role and responsibilities of the study abroad advisor and has petitioned that the next advisor be given a separate office and modest budget. The group has also created a preliminary travel and study abroad brochure which was distributed to incoming freshmen last spring. Copies are available in the pamphlet rack next to the HUB desk. Once the next study abroad advisor's name is known, a professional brochure will be produced.

Campus Life

"The group would like to see a campus on which elements of our 'global village' are everywhere present," said Jane Schaffer, group facilitator. Daily reminders of international matters are continually before the campus community. While it's Two Weeks on China program is a start, much more needs to be done. Examples of long-term projects to consider are: an increase in international programming; a Global Engagement Newsletter; recognition of our international and study abroad students at Commencement; permanent display exhibits about Bethlehem's Sister Cities—Schwäbisch Gmünd (Germany), Tondabayashi (Japan), and Murska Sobota (Slovenia); and closer cooperation with the international congregations of the Moravian Church.

Physics Teacher Organization Meets on Campus

On October 23 and 24, the Department of Physics and Earth Science sponsored two American Association of Physics Teachers (AAPT) events on campus. On Friday, October 23, twenty high school physics teachers took over the introductory physics laboratories in Collier Hall of Science for a day of "make and take" demonstrations. This workshop provided teachers with inexpensive projects that demonstrate concepts of sound, waves, light, electricity, and motion. On Saturday, October 24, the executive committee of the central Pennsylvania section of AAPT gathered for their annual meeting. David McGee of the Physics and Earth Science Department, a member of the executive committee, noted that a central focus of the meeting was to address proposed changes in the Pennsylvania guidelines for secondary education in physics and technology. The AAPT is a national organization of physics teachers with the goal of improving physics education at the K-12 through college levels.

MAW to Meet

The next meeting of the Moravian Academic Women will be at the home of Astrid Kromayer (1832 Jennings Street, Bethlehem) on Friday, November 13, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m.

and observations on health in the developing world.

“Significant improvements in the health status of the population of developing countries during the past 35 years have taken place quietly and without fanfare. The process and forces of change in many countries was quite similar to that which occurred in the mission hospital in Nicaragua on a micro scale. The presentation will outline these changes and their impact from a global perspective and from personal experience,” he said.

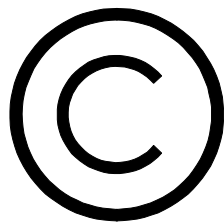

Dr. Wallace’s credentials, accomplishments, and experiences serve as testimony to an extraordinary life’s journey. He received an engineering degree from Lehigh University, a medical doctorate from the University of Pennsylvania and a master’s in international health from Johns Hopkins University. His internship, medicine, and surgery residencies were served at St Luke’s Hospital.

Original plans to practice in Bucks County were delayed by service as a medical missionary in Nicaragua. That experience resulted in a significant vocational change to focus on health in the developing world.

He established the Office of International Health at the University of Wisconsin Medical School and from that base provided consultant services for many organizations such as the World Health Organization, Pan American Health Organization, UNICEF, and NASA; helped to found a new medical school in Saudi Arabia; and most recently assisted the Ministry of Health of

Library Users Might Want to Join the Fight against Copyright Term Extension

Were you aware that the purpose of the “Copyright Term Extension Act” is to extend the copyright term for individual authors from life +50 to life +70 and to extend corporate creations from 75 to 95 years? The act was passed by the House of Representatives in April and is now being considered by the Senate.

If passed, the act would mean financial loss to library users according to Linda LaPointe of Reeves Library who attended a conference entitled “Information Wars: Winners, Losers and Non-combatants” at Villanova University on October 14.

Linda advised when thinking about the right to access information, consider that “College and university libraries loan 180 million items each year at a cost of the African country of Swaziland to expand Primary Health Care services. He has also served a term, as president of two professional international health organizations.

At the present time, Dr. Wallace is a faculty member of Jefferson Medical School where he serves as the on-site director of an educational program for medical students and residents at a mission hospital in Swaziland.

An optional cafeteria-style dinner will be served in the Pavilion at 6:15 p.m. for $7.00 preceding the lecture.

approximately a billion dollars. If students and faculty had to purchase those materials, the cost would be at least $8 billion.” (Source: “Library Advocacy 102: Helpful Statistics.” ALA, Chicago, IL. 1998.)

This issue and the ways that libraries are coping with copyright issues in the electronic age was the theme of that American College Research Libraries conference.

Adam Eisgrau, legislative counsel for the American Library Association, was the keynote speaker. He highlighted many of the congressional actions since the 1976 copyright revisions and warned librarians that the era of “pay for use” may be no further away than the 106th congress. ALA is gearing up by forming advocacy groups and hosting public awareness meetings.

Crossroads of Early Christianity Tour

Clarke Chapman is helping organize an educational tour and cruise in the eastern Mediterranean in June of 1999. It has been redesigned for economy-minded participants, who will be accompanied by two dozen international biblical scholars who will introduce each site visited. The two seven-day segments: “Lands of Antiquity” sails from Athens to Crete, Israel, Cyprus, Rhodes, and Patmost (June 11-17), and “Footsteps of St. Paul” sails from Athens to Ephesus, the Dardenelles, Istanbul, and northern Greece ((June 18-25). Choose either or both. See Clarke for details.

Activities

Wuerth attends symposium; speaks about Holocaust . . . Hans Wuerth of the Foreign Language Department attended a symposium on October 25-27 entitled "The Claims of Memory." It was held at Boston University in "Celebration of the Life and Work of Elie Wiesel." Speakers included Saul Bellow, Ariel Dorfman, Cynthia Ozick, John Silber, Henry Louis Gates, Steven Katz, Geoffrey Hartman and some others. The host was Jon Westling, president of Boston University. This symposium, held in honor of Elie Wiesel's seventieth birthday, addressed the implications of memory for human activity and the human spirit.

Hans was also invited to speak recently at a Unitarian Church in New Jersey on the topic "The Holocaust Remembered." This speech included a study of philosopher Moses Mendelssohn's challenge of anti-Semitism and discrimination in the 18th century.

Rossi speaks at tax conference . . . John D. Rossi III of the Business and Economics Department spoke at the 1998 Federal Tax Conference on October 21 in Pittsburgh, and October 22 in Philadelphia. John's speech was entitled "Appeals Review of Offers-in-Compromise and Collection Issues." His presentation was designed to assist CPAs in advising their clients who are unable to pay federal taxes owed. Emphasis dealt with the IRS and how to legally avoid or minimize penalties. Among the taxpayer options discussed were installment agreements and offers-in-compromise. The 1998 Federal Tax Conference was sponsored by the PICPA Foundation for Education and Research and is regularly attended by the CPAs in public practice industry and government from around Pennsylvania.

LaPointe and Minor join panel on music research . . . Linda LaPointe and Tom Minor of Reeves Library were two of six panelists discussing "Doing Moravian Music Research" at the Third Bethlehem Conference on Moravian Music at Moravian College and Lehigh University on October 23.

David Schattschneider chairs team . . . David Schattschneider, dean and vice president of the Seminary, chaired an accreditation team from the Association of Theological Schools and the Western Association of Schools and Colleges during an October 14-16 visit to the Church Divinity School of the Pacific (Episcopal) in Berkeley, California. While in the Bay area he also visited with two Seminary graduates: the Rev. Andrew Meckstroth, interim pastor of the First Baptist Church of Oakland, and the Rev. Lynnette Delbridge who, after doctoral study at Union Theological Seminary in New York, is beginning her teaching career as assistant professor of New Testament at the American Baptist Seminary of the West, also in Berkeley.

Olson attends Washington Semester Program meeting . . . Gary Olson of the Political Science Department attended the Interinstitutional Meeting of the Washington Semester Program at the American University on October 16-17. This term there are 374 students in the program from 175 participating colleges and universities. Some schools send many students each term. For example, the numbers this semester include: Gettysburg

(45) Bates (14) Tufts (22) Franklin & Marshall (16) Vassar (12) and Occidental (30). Over the years, some 90 Moravian students have studied in the program, averaging 2-3 per term.

Fiske attends digitizing workshop . . . Melanie Fiske of Reeves Library attended a workshop on October 19 called "Digitizing Collections: A Hands-On Practicum" at the Philadelphia Pennsylvania Library Internet (PALINET) offices. Participants learned the basics about digitizing images and text. "The library is hoping to digitize parts of the Moravian collection and mount them on the Web," Melanie said. The workshop, which used Adobe Photoshop, was one of several recent steps towards this goal.

Diamond speaks on post-colonial literature . . . George S. Diamond of the English Department gave two speeches recently about the National Endowment for the Humanities Institute on post-colonial literature and theory which he attended last summer in London. He spoke to the University Dinner Club on October 3 and to a breakfast meeting of the Berman Center for Jewish Studies at Lehigh University on October 23. In his talks Diamond described the nature of this NEH Summer Institute, the challenge and difficulty in defining post-colonial, specific works of fiction classified as post-colonial, and the scholars, critics, and authors who visited the Institute to engender and refine a meaning for post-colonial. Post-colonial is a field in which the concepts of race, power, culture, language, class, and identity are central. These concepts are also profoundly important to the understanding of the contemporary world—especially as one century closes and another begins.

College Outstanding Senior Female Athlete the same year, was a four-year letterwinner on the women's basketball and field hockey teams. On the basketball court, she was named to the Middle Atlantic Conference Southeast League All-Star Team during the 1985-86 and 1986-87 seasons. Condron was also the Lady Greyhound's team Most Valuable Player (MVP) the same years and completed her career with 1,111 points.

Ivin graduated from Moravian in 1988 and lettered four seasons in men's basketball. He was the first Greyhound player to be named the MAC MVP and to the National Association of Basketball Coaches District All-Star and All-American Teams. Ivin was the MAC Southwest MVP, a MAC Southwest League All-Star, an ECAC Southern Region All-Star, a NABC District All-Star and a NABC Honorable Mention All-American in his senior season of 1987-88. He also set the school record that year for rebounds in a season with 280. Ivin, who scored 1,118 points in his career, currently works as a student assistance coordinator and licensed clinical social worker in the Randolph Township School District.

King completed his degree in 1977 and played three years of football for the Greyhounds. He was the team's MVP in 1975 as a junior. King's was named a MAC Southern First Team All-Star in 1976, the same year that he set the school record for rushing yards in a season with 919. He became the first player to reach 1,000 yards in two seasons and King is still the only player to reach 2,000 yards in three years. He finished his career with 2,177 yards. King currently works as a fire fighter for the New York City Fire Department and is also a substitute teacher.

Montz, who graduated in 1984, competed in both football and baseball. He played on the gridiron for three years and was an all-star on the baseball field for four seasons. Montz was named to the MAC All-Star team as a second baseman in 1982 and 1984 and as a pitcher in 1984. During the 1984 season in which he set the school record for hits in a season with 33, Montz became the first player in MAC history to be named to the MAC All-Star team at two positions in the same year. He was also named the Greyhounds MVP that season and was also the Fellowship of Christian Athletes Player of the Year in 1984. Montz is currently working for the Pennsylvania Office of the Attorney General in the Bureau of Narcotics Investigation and Drug Control.

Toner, a 1958 Moravian graduate, played four sports. He was a four-year letterwinner in men's basketball and competed for two years on the golf team and one season each of baseball and tennis. Toner was the basketball team captain in 1957-58 and completed his basketball career with 1,241 points and the school record for made free throws. Toner is a retired basketball coach and senior citizen case worker.

Weiss graduated from Moravian in 1939 and is the father of Seattle Supersonics assistant coach Bob Weiss. During his four years as a Greyhound, Weiss competed in three sports each year, football, basketball and baseball. In 1939 he served as the captain of the baseball squad. Weiss is a retired teacher and coach.

Wilkinson, who completed her degree at Moravian in 1988, was a four-year letterwinner on the women's basketball and volleyball teams. She was a two-time Kodak All-American in basketball as was the Lady Greyhound MVP as a senior. Wilkinson, who was a MAC Southwest League All-Star twice, was the first junior to surpass the 1,000-point scoring plateau. She completed her career as the all-time leading scorer with 1,640 points and also as the all-time leading rebounder with 830 boards. Wilkinson set two school records with 39 points in a game as a sophomore and 572 points in her junior year. As a senior, Wilkinson was named the Moravian College Outstanding Senior Female Athlete and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes Player of the Year. Wilkinson currently works as a financial service representative for National Penn Bank.

Rampone, who was a four-year letterwinner in football and competed in wrestling, graduated from Moravian in 1959. He is being awarded the Robert Martin Herbstman Award for his work after graduation. Rampone served as co-captain of the football team in 1957 and captain in 1958. On the wrestling mat, Rampone became the first wrestler in Moravian history to make the MAC finals. Rampone, a retired educator, works with the Alumni Office and the Blue & Grey Club.

The 1982 and 1983 men's soccer teams posted an overall record of 19-14-2 and captured the MAC Southwest League Championship both years. The 1982 squad won the Hampden-Sydney Tournament and competed in the NCAA Regionals while the 1983 team captured both the MAC and MAC Southern titles.

Group Reorganizes LVAIC Ecumenical Seminar

Fifteen faculty members from consortium colleges attended the year's first meeting of the newly reorganized LVAIC Ecumenical Seminar. The seminar is a long-standing consortium organization which presents stimulating academic programs—mostly in the area of theology, philosophy, and the humanities in general. It's membership is open to interested persons connected with the six consortium colleges. Though dormant for a time, it has been reorganized by Darrell Jodock, Muhlenberg College; Mike Reposa, Lehigh University; and Jim Yerkes, Moravian College.

For the first meeting this year, Darrell Jodock and Jim Yerkes presented brief summaries of the essays that they have written for a new book, John Updike And Religion: One Of The Great Secret Things edited by Jim Yerkes and scheduled to be published in the fall of 1999. A lively discussion followed the presentation. The meeting ended with a dinner whose cost was underwritten by the seminar.

The next meeting of the seminar is planned in memory of A. Roy Eckardt, long time professor of religious studies at Lehigh University and will take place on Thursday, November 5, at 4:30 p.m. in Dana Lecture Hall, Collier Hall of Science. Dr. Robert A. Everett, director of the Institute for Jewish-Christian Understanding at Muhlenberg College, will deliver a paper in tribute to Dr. Eckardt entitled "The Legacy of A. Roy Eckardt: Theologian of Conscience." A fellowship supper will follow, partially underwritten by the seminar. For more information contact Karen D'Angelo at ext. 1414.

English Department Attends Dodge Poetry Festival

Thirty-two students and English Department faculty members attended The Geraldine R. Dodge Poetry Festival in the Village of Waterloo, Stanhope, New Jersey, On September 25. Held every two years in the tents and meeting houses of this reconstructed Colonial village, the festival brings in many of America's leading poets to read their works and discuss the art and craft of composing poetry, to large audiences and in small, intimate groups. There is also ample opportunity for apprentice poets to read their works. In addition, there is a poetry book fair, strolling musicians, souvenir stands galore, and food stalls of every type.

Among the poets in attendance this year were Sharon Olds, Lucille Clifton, Robert Pinsky, Amiri Baraka, W. S. Merwin, Stanley Kunitz, Galway Kinnell, Marge Piercy, and Adrienne Rich. As a result of the trip's success this year, the English Department hopes to make it a traditional department event beginning with the presentation of the next festival in the autumn of 2000.

Moravian Joins National Collegiate Inventors and Innovators Alliance

Moravian College recently became an institutional member of the National Collegiate Inventors and Innovators Alliance (NCIIA). Clif Kussmaul (in Computer Science) and Santo Marabella and Jim West (in Economics and Business) arranged for the membership, which allows faculty and students to apply for grants for curriculum development and the work of E-Teams. E-Teams are interdisciplinary groups of students working collaboratively to identify real-world problems, develop practical solutions, and commercialize their innovations.

The NCIIA is an initiative of the Lemelson National Program at Hampshire College. It supports faculty and students who believe that the teaching of invention and innovation is critical to American Higher Education. For more information about the NCIIA, visit their web site: <http://hamp.hampshire.edu/nciia>.

Lady Greys Get Votes Nationally For First Time

For the first time in school history, the Moravian College women's volleyball team has received votes in the American Volleyball Coaches Association NCAA Division III national poll. The Lady Greyhounds received 11 points in the seven poll of the season released on Wednesday, just five points out of the Top 20 in the nation.

Moravian is 22-3 overall after Tuesday's 3-0 victory over Lebanon Valley College. The Lady Greyhounds are ranked second in the Mid-Atlantic Region this week, also the highest-ever ranking in school history.

This weekend, Moravian will compete at the Juniata College Tournament. Besides host Juniata, which is ranked first in the country, two other nationally ranked teams, Nebraska Wesleyan and Rochester Institute of Technology, are in the field. Moravian will open the tournament on Friday with matches against Simpson (IA) College and NCAA Division II Pace University.

Payne Gallery Exhibits Works of Istvan Orosz

The Payne Gallery exhibit November 12 to December 13 features "Perception and Deception: The Works of Istvan Orosz" in celebration of the centenary of M. C. Escher. The opening reception will be Thursday, November 12, from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. with a talk by the artist at 8:00 p.m.

Graphic artist Istvan Orosz of Budapest uses traditional printing techniques such as woodcuts and engravings to create works to tease and fascinate the eye of the viewer. His visual puzzles are carefully rendered, often resurrecting fantastic visions of the past to lead the viewer into his trompe l'oeil world. Some of his works are political, growing from changes in Eastern Europe; he has also created graphics book covers, theatrical posters, paintings, and illustrations, all rendered with meticulous attention to detail and a unique visual perspective.

Orosz's work reflects his studies of M. C. Escher's work, particularly Escher's mirrors and reflections. He was one of several contemporary artists inspired by Escher who participated in an international Escher Centennial Congress in June, 1998.

The gallery is open to the public free of charge daily except Monday from 11:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.
