ENGL 299: Veterans Writing Workshop
Wednesday Evenings 6:30 -9:30 p.m.

This course, designed for student veterans who are enrolled at LVAIC institutions, Northampton County Community College, or Lehigh County Community College, is a workshop-based writing course in which students will shape narratives that address the many facets of their experiences as military veterans. While members of the class will read and discuss a variety of texts (ranging from the British “war poets” of World War I to twentieth- and twenty-first-century works by writers such as Tim O’Brien, Bobbi Ann Mason, Brian Turner, Siobhan Fallon, Brian Castner, and Phil Klay), they will work primarily on the writing of their own narrative works, including fiction and memoir.

Students enrolled in the course will be invited to present and discuss their work at the LVAIC Conference on War and Peacebuilding: Drawing on the Power of Narrative and Dialogue to Build a Just Society in the Lehigh Valley on Friday, March 27, 2015, to be held at Moravian College.
